Site Conditions and Storage

Staff and a worker walk around the clinic with a tablet as they complete a clinic safety inspection. The video then shows staff enjoying lunch in a clean staff room followed by a staff member packing away a box and its contents. The clinic follows proper storage and good housekeeping practices.

[Narration]

Regular inspections of the clinic and following proper storage and good housekeeping practices help prevent injuries and keep physicians, staff, and patients healthier and safer.

Your clinic must have safe places for staff to eat and store food, clean and working washrooms, and good indoor air quality.

Chemicals and compressed gas cylinders must be stored safely and away from eating areas.

Make sure walkways, exits, and electrical panels are clear and accessible.

To build your health and safety program – use our Clinic Safety Inspection Checklist at least once a year.
